GREAT RISK IN BUYING WHEAT

Gettysburg Dealers Cannot Sell it Promptly and Fear a Loss.

HAVE NO CHANCE TO SHIP

All Ports Closed and Adams County Wheat Must Lie in Local Warehouses for Indefinite Time.

With every point of shipment closed to them, Gettysburg's warehousemen are up against one of the most serious situations which has confronted them in years. The Western Maryland has now put an embargo on grain and numerous other shipments to Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York were closed some days ago. Every bit of grain received at the local warehouses must, accordingly, just be stored away until the embargoes are lifted.

In the meantime the wheat market is fluctuating widely almost every day. Friday the purchasing price dropped from $1.78 to $1.75, and this morning there was a further decline of five cents which took it to $1.70 and the lowest figure in days. Indications are that it may go lower still if the embargo continues.

And with this situation staring them in the face, the Gettysburg dealers are still buying the grain as fast as the farmers bring it in. If large quantities are bought and the drop continues—with no possibility of selling at an early date—the warehousemen are going to be caught and caught badly. So far, however, they have not announced any determination to refuse the wheat and they are taking all that is offered and storing it away.

The embargo situation is brought about by a serious car shortage which prevails all over the country, and by a congestion in the freight traffic. Many of the big city railroad yards are crowded to the limit with loaded cars and the only way to keep this condition from becoming worse was to stop further shipments to as great a degree as possible.

Big trains have been held up all along the line. At the present time several hundred carloads of grain are in storage in the Western Maryland yards at "Camp Siding", immediately east of Gettysburg. Other long trains and strings of cars may be found at various sidings on the road, and the condition on the Western Maryland is duplicated on pretty nearly every eastern railway system in the United States.

But so long as the warehousemen continue to buy, the farmers have a market for their grain. At Littlestown, Frederick, and Taneytown, earlier in the season, the dealers simply stopped buying when the Pennsylvania announced an embargo, and continued refusing the grain until they could ship again.

MIGHT HAVE TO TURN IN MONEY

County Poor Directors could Collect Funds Bet on the Recent Election.

Gettysburg bettors, who wagered large sums of money on the result of the recent election and who have not yet collected their bets, as well as the stakeholders who were entrusted with the care of the money, have been made to feel rather uncomfortable by being reminded of the fact that the directors of the poor of Adams county, can, if they desire, confiscate all money risked in this manner.

An old law of the commonwealth, long overlooked, provides that the directors of the poor must proceed against everyone acting as stakeholder of an election wager. The money thus obtained is to be used, says the law, in caring for the poor. Action can be started any time within two years after the wagers have been made. Stakeholders, who pay over money to winners are liable to the county for the amount.

Since the Republican campaign managers have not as yet conceded President Wilson's re-election, many stakeholders still retain the sums placed in their hands.

FOR THE KIDDIES

Trolley Line Bearing our Name Moves to Safeguard School Children.

The Chambersburg and Gettysburg Trolley Company, along its line 200 feet on each side of a school building, has erected red signs, bearing this warning: "Slow—School House Ahead." The signs are so placed that not only can the trolley trainmen see them, but they can also be read by motorists.

CALL FOR PASTOR

Hanover Minister is Wanted by City Congregation.

Rev. A. M. Heilman, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran church, Hanover, who is well known to many here, has received a call to Grace Lutheran church, Chicago. It is understood that he will accept.

CURB MARKET SEASON CLOSING

Available Supply of Produce is Small and Attendance is Dwindling.

Six truckers shivered through the hours of the Saturday curb market which presented a striking contrast to the offerings of a week previous when a dozen wagons about the curb held a variety of good things to eat. This morning there was little on hand except apples, potatoes, butter, eggs, and staple farm products available the year round.

The time is rapidly drawing near when the market will be officially closed for the year and again this season the institution has proved to be a success from every point of view. Financially, the market pays the borough, for the receipts from stall rentals more than pay the expenses incident to the upkeep of the affair.

Never has the market provided a better line of good things to eat than during the past summer. Everything that farm, orchard, and garden produced was brought in to Gettysburg in sufficient quantities to meet all demands and the purchasers had the selection of the choicest things grown.

The market men are strongly for the institution and the people of town—now that the objectionable features of the first year have been overcome—are almost a unit in support of it.

FORD BUCKS EMBANKMENT

Battlefield Tourists have mishap at Pennsylvania Monument.

While Charles Andrews and a party, of Oxford, Chester county, were touring the Battlefield Saturday morning about eight-thirty in a Ford, they had the misfortune to run the car against the embankment at the Pennsylvania monument. Mr. Andrews' son had been driving the car and in some manner a blanket which was wrapped about the feet of the passengers in the front seat, became entangled in the control pedals and caused the driver to lose control of the car. The car received a bent axle and steering rod. No one was injured.

WIDOW LOSES

Appellate Court Sets Aside Verdict for Loss of Husband.

The Hagerstown and Frederick Railway Company won in the Maryland Court of Appeals the case brought against it by Mrs. Olive Cunningham in Washington county some months ago. The husband of Mrs. Cunningham was killed when he was going to Hagerstown. The car was badly crowded and in going around one of the bends, it was said, Mr. Cunningham lost his balance and was thrown to the paved street and killed. His wife brought suit for damages for the loss of her husband and for the support of the small children surviving.

In the trial of the case at Hagerstown the jury awarded Mrs. Cunningham and her children a verdict for $5250. An appeal was taken and the result is that the Court of Appeals set aside the verdict and refuses to award Mrs. Cunningham a new trial.

RECORD CROWD FOR BIG GAME

Gettysburg and Bucknell Meet in Annual Battle on Island Park.

HAVE LARGE EXCURSION

Many Town People Join with College Boys in Outing. Believe they will See Victory.

The largest crowd of people ever to leave Gettysburg for the mere purpose of attending a foot ball game was registered to-day when 495 tickets were sold for the special excursion to Harrisburg on account of the big Gettysburg-Bucknell contest on Island Park this afternoon. And all left in great spirits and confident of victory.

Almost every student in the local institutions accompanied the team to the Capitol City and many town people were included on the train. It made a great delegation and they held a parade in Harrisburg immediately after their arrival there. The Lewisburg contingent arrived later in the morning and they, too, had a big crowd.

In addition to those who went on the excursion were a number who journeyed to Harrisburg last night for a big college men's dance to precede the game. A number of young ladies from Gettysburg were among the guests. Early this afternoon many automobiles started out from town for Harrisburg, and Gettysburg's section at the Island Park grounds was completely filled long before the time for the game to start.

Gettysburg's confidence of victory was based largely on the development made by the team in the past few weeks. The line which earlier in the season was regarded as weak has come through with wonderful strides and, it is believed, will be fully able to withstand the onslaughts of the heavier Bucknell outfit. The backfield is a star aggregation centering about Rote who is everywhere conceded to be the most clever open field runner Gettysburg has ever had.

Not having the weight to carry the ball through his opponents by brute strength, he makes up for this deficiency by speed and dodging so that he is almost sure to make his share of gains when called upon.

Among the town people who accompanied the excursion to Harrisburg were, Miss Lillie Plank, David Cassatt, James Ross, Philip Shue, Harry Musser, Mrs. Edward Woodward, Mrs. J. A. Menchey, Miss Catherine Dillman, Samuel Noel, Albert Lott, Mrs. William Musser, Norman Cassatt, Clyde Hansford, Miss Emma Woodward, Miss Carrie Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wright, Ira Williams, Goodell Sieber, Joseph Ocker, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ohler, Mrs. William Tawney, Mrs. E. P. HAVE HEAVY LOSSES

Hunters are Killing Chickens of Farmers Nearby.

Farmers near Hagerstown are suffering heavy losses in chickens since the hunting season began. They say that hunters come upon their land without licenses or permits and that some have even become so bold as to shoot chickens before the eyes of the owners. Clarence E. Shupp, residing east of Hagerstown, on the Paper Mill road, states that he lost at least 30 chickens so far by hunters.

COLLARBONE BROKEN

Pete Bigler, star third baseman of the Gettysburg ball club last summer, is recovering from injuries he received recently in a foot ball scrimmage at the Springfield Training School. He had his collarbone broken in practice and has been out of the game for some days.

MORE MONEY FOR HOLIDAY CIGARS

General Rise in this Favorite Form of Remembrance for Gentlemen.

The high cost of living has handed a knock-out blow to the well-known old jest about the cheap Christmas "see-gar" with its gaudy band and holly-spattered label. For no more will there be any cheap Christmas smokes.

Increased cost of tobacco, labor, boxes, labels, and everything else but the revenue stamps, dealers say, is responsible for the rise in price which will take effect as soon as the cigar merchants receive their holiday packages. The average packing of cigars twenty boxes to a thousand and the standard holiday box, which holds but twenty-five cigars instead of the usual fifty means that forty boxes must be used for a thousand of smokes. This increases the cost. There is twice as much work in the packing of the smaller boxes, twice as many box labels are used and twice as much time is taken up.

For the last year the cigar factories have been working on a reduced profit and the extra cost of holiday packages, the manufacturers say, means that they must either increase the price or sell them without profit.

The advance will be small, cigars of the five-cent variety selling at $1.25 a box of twenty-five instead of the customary one dollar or $1.15. Smaller boxes will be scarce and small packings of cheaper cigars rare indeed.

The Pittsburgh stogie already has jumped from three for five cents to two for a nickel, or five for ten cents, and the "two-for" kind will be three for ten cents. These prices will probably hold for at least three years, according to the tobacco men.

DEMOCRATS HOLD GOOD JUBILATION

Parade with Cleverly Arranged Floats and Other Features Friday Night.

MANY CARS IN THE LINE

Town and College Bands Provided Music. Plenty of Fireworks in Procession. Town Homes Lighted.

Adams County Democrats turned out in force for their celebration of victory Friday night and a creditable parade, with plenty of local color, to it resulted. The column was a number of squares in length, had two bands, several dozen automobiles, some cleverly arranged floats, numerous marchers, lots of red fire and other pyrotechnics. It required just ten minutes for the procession to pass a given point.

Among the best ideas in the floats was the four mule team furnished by county residents and placed well up toward the head of the parade where it belonged. The four mules were hitched in tandem style, each was ridden by a driver in grotesque costume and wearing a hat several feet in height. All the mules were hitched to an old fashioned cart in which was Hughes' goat—live enough but well tethered.

Other live goats also appeared elsewhere in the parade, some of them being alleged possessions of various politicians real and near.

The Wilson and Marshall Hunting club, with tents and other camp equipment and with the dead G. O. P. elephant suspended, feet-up, from a substantial cross bar, came near the end of the procession and got well merited applause for the elaborate way in which its inventors had carried out the idea. C. B. Tate's minstrel troupe were eagerly awaited all along the line and did not disappoint when they appeared.

The Salt River boat idea was on hand, as was to be expected. Several varieties of water craft appeared including the more modern U-boat which was given the credit of submerging Republican hopes. Automobiles carried numerous banners bearing on the national election while other placards carried by marchers dwelt more particularly with local conditions.

Frequent reference was made to the rumored disappointment of a likely candidate for the postmastership should a Republican have been elected to the presidential chair; the marchers took special delight in their signs alluding to local citizens who had cast their votes for the now defeated G. O. P. leader; and statements made before election or at the polls on election day were displayed without mercy all along the route of the parade.

The procession moved more promptly than is customary for an event of this nature and came up Chambersburg street soon after the hour appointed for its appearance. Immediately following Chief Marshal Riddemoser and some of his aides rode Congressman-elect Brodbeck and County Chairman Williams. Then came the four-mule team and numerous marchers, all armed with fireworks, flags, and banners.

The college band and some enthusiastic college boys who had escaped from a foot ball mass meeting led the next section which was strung out for a number of blocks with motor cars and many varieties of vehicles appropriately decorated with flags, pennants, roosters, and other emblems.

Practically every part of town was visited by the paraders and the sympathizers had their homes well illuminated for the event.

All told, the affair was a success, giving lots of opportunity for the paraders to let off their exuberance and plenty of entertainment to the spectators, with little if any offensive sarcasm.

LADIES' and children's coat weather now. There will be no price cut about the first of the new year as has been usual—the greatest trouble will be to get them when present stocks are exhausted, because of scarcity of cloths. FALKENHAYN IS DRIVING AHEAD

Loss of Rumanian Position Admitted in Petrograd.

BATTLE FOR MONASTIR IS ON

The Bulgars, Outflanked, Are Now Making Final Stand in Front of the Serbian City.

Berlin, Nov. 18.—Penetration of a Rumanian position west of the Pread road by German and Austro-Hungarian forces is announced by the war office.

In the Rothenthurm pass the troops under Lieutenant General Krafft von Dellmeningen, advancing south, brought in as a result of the fighting ten officers and more than 1500 men as prisoners.

On other portions of the Transylvanian front the Germans captured more than 650 Russians and twelve machine guns.

Bavarian reserve troops, in a bayonet charge, captured the summit of Rungel mountain, along the Moldavian frontier of Rumania, and held it against heavy counter attacks.

"Troops report that the Rumanian population is taking part in the fighting," the official report states.

Near Silistria the artillery fighting was more spirited than on preceding days.

Between Malik and Presba lakes on the western edge of the Monastir plain and on the heights northeast of Chel, in the bend of the Cerna river, renewed attacks by the entente troops in strong force were repulsed.

Closing in on Monastir.

London, Nov. 18.—The capture by the Austro-Hungarian forces which are invading Rumania of the village of Liresht, in the Campulung area, is officially announced by Petrograd.

The Rumanians also have evacuated the village of Tirajolul, in the Jiu sector.

The allied vise is closing on Monastir. While the Serbs have stormed the range buttressing the town on the east, the French and Russian forces have swept forward on the Monastir plain until they now are within four miles of their objective.

The Bulgars, outflanked, have been forced to fall back steadily, and now they are making a final stand in front of Monastir itself.

The battle that is expected to decide the fate of the town is developing.

The capture by the British of the town of Barakli, on the eastern end of the Macedonian front is officially announced.

British Deny German Gains.

London, Nov. 18.—British forces along the river Ancre are still attacking the German positions defending Bapaume on the western side.

The war office announces that the British lines north of the Ancre have been extended east of Beaumont, as a result of these attacks.

In that sector the British drive has been slowed by the powerful obstacles presented by the Miramont-Grandcourt line of German defenses.

"Fifty-four aerial engagements were fought by French aviators in the Amiens area. In the course of this fighting Lieutenant Guynemer, one of the combatants brought down his twenty-first hostile machine, the Paris war office announced.

EGG PRICES LEAPING

Fresh Product Sells at 52c to 60c a Dozen in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Nov. 18.—The price of eggs in the wholesale market continues to advance despite the fact that 15,000,000 eggs will be released from storage on December 1.

Although the best grade of refrigerator eggs was quoted by dealers at $11.40 a case or thirty-eight cents a dozen, the fresh, fancy, selected candied eggs were jobbing at from fifty-two to sixty cents a dozen. The same day last week the former stock was quoted at 33 1/2 cents a dozen, of $10.95 a case, and the fancy fresh stock at forty-six to fifty-two cents a dozen.

This big jump in prices at wholesale will affect the retail markets in proportion.

Ask $18,250,000 of Movie Company.

New York, Nov. 18.—Seven suits asking treble damages amounting to approximately $18,250,000, and alleging violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, were brought against the Motion Picture Patents company and various moving picture companies and individuals in the federal court on behalf of the Colorado Film Exchange, the Chicago Film Exchange and several other agencies in the middle west.

Doom Egypt's Sultan.

Amsterdam, Nov. 18.—A despatch from Beirut, Syria, says that a war tribunal has passed a sentence of death on Hussein Kemal Pasha, Sultan of Egypt, on the ground that he placed under foreign rule constituent parts of the Turkish empire.

Worries Over Clash: Shoots Himself. Carbondale, Pa., Nov. 18.—Brooding over a quarrel, Joseph Francher, twenty-eight years old, a mine worker, went into a field here and fired two bullets into his head and three into his breast. He may recover.

SAFE ROBBED HE HAS SON ARRESTED

Youth Denies Stealing $4000 in Jewels and Money.

Philadelphia, Nov. 18.—William C. Rowan, the twenty-year-old son of William N. Rowan, a real estate operator and contractor, who lives at 1820 South Broad street, was arrested on suspicion of stealing $4000 worth of jewelry and money from his father's safe.

According to Detective Duey the elder Rowan left the house on Wednesday night, slamming the door. Later a daughter reached home in a limousine and tried to open the Yale lock with her pass key. It wouldn't work and she was forced to wait for her father, who arrived at midnight. The father tried the door, but he, too, was forced to give up. Father and daughter made their way to the rear and found the gate, the kitchen door and the dining room door open.

The father's first thought was of $1600 in gold and $2400 worth of jewelry he had locked in the safe in the dining room early in the evening. The safe door was locked. Mr. Rowan opened it, the combination working all right, and found that the jewelry and money had disappeared.

Duey says he learned that only two persons, the father and the son Daniel, knew the combination of the safe. Daniel, however, is ill in the Pennsylvania hospital, having been operated upon for stomach trouble. The detective says that four days ago the accused son visited his brother in the hospital and said: "Danny, wouldn't it be awful if no one knew the combination of the safe and you should die."

The elder brother explained that his father knew the combination and that if anything should happen to both of them the combination would be written on the back of an old dictionary in the library.

Duey and Mr. Rowan searched for this dictionary, but couldn't find it. Then Duey told Mr. Rowan of his suspicions, and as a result Mr. Rowan swore out a warrant for his young son's arrest.

BERLIN WARNED BY U. S.

Conference in Germany on the Submarine Question.

London, Nov. 18.—The visit of Baron Buriat, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister to Berlin, is stated to have been in connection with a conference with Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German imperial chancellor, regarding the relations of the two empires with the United States, according to a despatch under a Berne date given out by the Wireless Press.

The question under discussion, says the despatch, was whether the submarine campaign should be continued in its present form with the possibility of a rupture of relations with Washington or whether it should be modified.

"During the last few days," adds the despatch, "the German government has received a plain verbal warning that President Wilson's patience was on the verge of exhaustion."

The entire crew of five on the tug were lost. The Deutschland returned to her ship here.

The inquiry was set in motion by Captain William E. Whitney, United States steamboat inspector for this district.

The engineer of the Deutschland and the lookout who was on duty when the vessels came together, and members of the crew of the tug Cassie, also will be heard before the submarine starts again on her return trip. It will be several days before the inquiry is completed and nothing as to its progress will be made public in advance of the official findings, the inspector said.

Captain Whitney and H. M. Rankin, federal boiler inspector, visited the Deutschland's pier, but were not allowed to go aboard the submarine according to Inspector Whitney. They were unable to say, for this reason, he explained, whether the Deutschland's machinery was affected by the collision. Captain Whitney said: "I found her stem twisted to starboard slightly and three plates were damaged somewhat. The injuries were all above the light waterline, and they should be easy to repair."

Captain Koenig said, before going into the federal inquiry, that no member of his crew had been injured.

An "eddy" caused the accident, according to Captain Harry Baker, of the tug Cassie, the other conveyer of the submarine. The Cassie was traveling about half a mile astern of the Deutschland while the Scott and the submarine were moving about abreast. The sea was calm, Captain Baker said, and conditions were normal. The Scott carried the usual lights, but the Deutschland had only her headlight and two side lights.

The tide was running almost full and when about seven miles west of Race Rock they struck an "eddy," which twisted them about and out of control. Shortly afterward they came together. He heard the crash.

The night was clear, he said, and there were no boats other than the two tugs and the submarine Deutschland in the vicinity. He gave no credence to reports that a hostile motor boat was approaching the submarine at the time of the accident.

Captain Baker said that when the collision occurred he at once headed for the spot. On arriving there he saw Captain Hirsch, of the interned steamer Nectar, in the water and took him on board the Cassie. He was the only person aboard the tug that escaped death.

"The accident happened all in a minute," according to a member of the Deutschland's crew, who talked briefly about it. The tug, he said, got in front of the submarine and the Deutschland struck it in the stern, lifting it so far out of the water that the tug's nose went under.

An explosion of the boiler of the tug followed immediately. Captain Hirsch caught hold of a guy rope and was carried down with the tug. When he reappeared on the surface he managed to seize the life preserver thrown out from the Cassie.

President Hilken, of the Eastern Forwarding company, said that so far as he knew, the only damage the Deutschland suffered was a twisted stem. It was learned later, however, that the undersea boat has in her bow at least one hole about twenty inches square. A portable forge was taken down to the pier and the hole is being patched up.

LOANS TO FRENCH CITIES

Bordeaux, Lyons and Marseilles Borrow $60,000,000 in New York.

New York, Nov. 18.—Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who recently made a loan of $50,000,000 to the city of Paris to relieve the sufferings of that community as a result of the war, and for other municipal purposes, announced the closing of similar loans for $20,000,000 each to the municipalities of Bordeaux, Lyons and Marseilles.

The negotiation in each instance is in the form of three-year six per cent bonds. The principal and interest of the bonds are payable at the option of the holder in either United States gold coin in New York or in francs at the fixed rate of 5.50 per dollar. There is, therefore, the possibility of a substantial profit in exchange, inasmuch as the normal rate of exchange before the war was about 5.18 francs per dollar.

GIVES ADVICE ABOUT POULTRY

Farmers should Pay More Attention to Getting Birds Ready for Market.

Realizing the fact that Pennsylvania farmers pay little or no attention to properly fitting or fattening the poultry they market and that they market an especially large bulk for the Thanksgiving season, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture through the Farm Advice Bureau at Harrisburg offers the following timely advice:

Cockers and hens through the moult, are especially easy to fatten at this season of the year. Five pounds cockers or hens can easily be made to gain from one to two pounds each as a result of ten or twelve days forced feeding, at a cost of about six to eight cents a pound. Only healthy poultry from off free range will do, those raised and kept in confinement, like on a city back yard, will not respond. However, city people, can readily fatten the poultry they buy as above and not only have the increased weight, but flesh that is more tender, juicier and better flavored. The quiet and lack of exercise in the crate fattening methods breaks down the stringy, muscular tissue; this method of fattening tends to deposit layers of fat between layers of flesh and in cooking this makes for a juicier result and gives besides as the outcome of two weeks of lean feeding a most decidedly better flavored flesh.

Much farm poultry so habitually live on the manure pile and in pig sty and feed and drink there, that the flesh from birds, directly from same, is tainted.

There are two methods of fattening poultry that can be readily followed. The one is pen fattening, using corn as the feed. The older and best method is crate fattening. The crate can hold any number of birds up to twenty but not with so much room to move about and the floor is by preference slatted. Locate in a rather dark place out of sight and hearing of other poultry. The feed should be wet mash, using either hot water or skim or sour milk with corn-meal and middlings or ground oats and middlings, or buckwheat middlings and shorts. Feed regularly, three or four feeds a day, all they will eat and feed yet. Do not expect to continue this sort of feeding over two weeks.

Turkeys had better be fattened by feeding all the mash they will eat mornings and all the corn they will eat nights and left on free range. Some have had success with a modified form of crate fattening same as chickens but usually this is a failure.

Ducks and geese too should be fed heavily on mash and grain two weeks before killing and will make the best gains if allowed their usual run meanwhile.

If it is worth while for farmers to universally fatten their hogs and their steers before marketing, then it is worth while to universally fatten poultry. Plump round-breasted poultry sells well and commands a premium, but the bulk of market poultry continues to be, to the loss of the farmers, the long lean, lanky sort and this loss can and should be corrected.

SHOW GRATITUDE BY MAKING GIFTS

Asserts Thanksgiving Day is Fit Time to Give of Nation's Abundance.

President Wilson's Thanksgiving proclamation was issued Friday. It says:

"It has been the custom of our people to turn in the fruitful autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies to us and the nation.

"The year that has elapsed since we last observed our day of Thanksgiving has been rich in blessings to us as a people but the whole face of the world has been darkened by war. In the midst of our peace and happiness, our thoughts dwell with painful disquiet upon the struggles and sufferings of the nations at war and of the peoples upon whom war has brought disaster without choice or possibility of escape on their part. We cannot think of our own happiness without thinking of their pitiful distress.

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do appoint Thursday, the 30th of November, as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer and urge and advise the people to resort to their several places of worship on that day to render thanks to Almighty God for the blessings of peace and unbroken prosperity which he has bestowed upon our beloved country in such unstinted measure.

"And I also urge and suggest our duty, in this our day of peace and

At this meeting, together with other important matters, the subject of milk production and milk prices will be thoroughly discussed.

YORK COUNTY

TRAPPED BY ALARM

Trapped by an electric burglar alarm on the feed box at the plant of the York Storage & Ice company, Harry Platts, 23 years old, was found in the bin by workmen early in the morning. Before the storage plant employees answered the alarm Platts is alleged to have hastily emptied a bag of corn he is thought to have had ready to carry off, but put the corn in the wrong bin.

The alarm was placed on the feed box in such a manner that a thief would not hear the signal but that the sound of the bell would be audible to the workmen in the main plant. When the employees found Platts in the bin, they locked the door and telephoned for the police. He was turned over to Constable John R. Willets, who had been lying in wait for the feed marauder for the past several nights.

Speedy and Easy Riding

There's little comfort in most low priced cars. You can't use their speeds. They jostle you—they ride roughly—they don't hold the road.

The $635 Overland is different. It is not only the speediest of low priced cars—

But you can use the full speed of its powerful motor when you need it.

"Made in U.S.A."

It has long 42-inch, easy riding, shock absorbing cantilever rear springs. In addition the 75 B Overland is a longer car—104-inch wheelbase. And it has 4-inch tires.

Its smoothness and ease of riding at any speed would do justice to a much larger and heavier car.

Come in and let us demonstrate. That's the best kind of proof.

WIRELESS NEWSPAPER HAS 1,000 SUBSCRIBERS

Events of the World to Be Flashed Through the Air Every Evening.

The high cost of print paper will not prove a source of worry to the new wireless "newspaper," the first issue of which has just appeared from the De Forest experimental laboratories at Highbridge, N. Y. Dr. Lee de Forest predicts that the new publication will have a circulation of 10,000. He expects its growth will be rapid. The news of the world as well as music by opera stars will be placed before the subscribers nightly.

All the amateur wireless operators within 100 miles of New York will have at hand an hour to an hour of news and music every night by tuning their instruments to the wave length of the sending station at the laboratories. The entertainment will begin at 7:30, and the music records will be furnished by a company which manufactures records. Election returns were sent out over the wireless on election night.

Dr. de Forest is enthusiastic over the possibilities of the wireless publication. When the idea is developed, he said, farmers may bring their wires from the windmill to the cupola of the barn and have the latest news of the world and the voices of the greatest singers served to them as soon as they have finished their chores.

THE PINK BOLL WORM.

Greatest Cotton Menace Known Appears in Northern Mexico.

The pink boll worm, most destructive cotton pest known, has appeared for the first time in Northern America. The department of agriculture at Washington has just announced that worms had been discovered in northern Mexico, where their presence, the department says, "constitutes one of the greatest menaces which have come to the American industry in its history."

Importation from Mexico of cotton seed, cottonseed hulls and seed cotton is prohibited under an order issued Nov. 4.

SHOES $20 IN RUSSIA.

War Puts Up All Manufactures From 200 to 600 Per Cent.

Twenty dollars for a pair of shoes, 50 cents for a cigar of the lowest grade—these are samples of the advance in prices in Russia since the war began, according to J. E. Steurwald, who has just returned from that country, where he went as representative of a large American automobile concern.

"Of course all the larger Russian cities are under military restrictions concerning the supply of food," said Mr. Steurwald. "One is allowed to have meat three days a week—Sundays, Mondays and Tuesdays."

"Everything has advanced from 200 per cent to 600 per cent in price since the war began. Not only does this apply to foodstuffs, but it also affects clothing, tobacco and many other things. For instance, you pay 40 rubles (about $20) for a pair of shoes, and they are very poor ones even at that price. Cigars cost from 1 ruble up. Pipe tobacco is very high, a ten cent can of smoking tobacco costing at the very minimum 2 rubles and 70 kopecks (about $1.40). The reason for all of these high prices reverts back directly to the matter of transportation, as Russia has plenty of food and grain, but no way of transporting them."

CONTEST RECALLS ELECTION OF 1876

Long Uncertainty Over Hayes-Tilden Vote.

CLOSE MARGIN DECIDES

As In This Election, the Fight Between Hayes and Tilden Was Long In Doubt. Cleveland-Blaine Race In 1884 Also Similar—Returns Very Late In Arriving.

Close national elections always recall the historic contest of 1876, when Rutherford B. Hayes, Republican, was declared elected president by a margin of one electoral vote over Samuel J. Tilden, Democrat, almost four months after the election. On election night in November, 1876, Tilden's election was announced in the first editions of all the newspapers and at 1:30 o'clock was conceded by the Republican leaders.

Decided by Close Margin. The other memorable instance of close national elections was in 1884, when it was not known until Friday after election day whether Grover Cleveland or James G. Blaine had been chosen president, and then the contest was decided in New York state by a margin of 1,100 votes. It was at this election that John Y. McKane, the Democratic boss of Coney Island, who later went to Sing Sing for overzealous political activity, gave the Cleveland ticket a plurality in Gravesend that exceeded by 2,000 the total number of men, women and children in the town, which was 5,000.

The contest of 1876, which brought wholesale charges of fraud, gun play, intimidation and murder, some of which were also proved, started on election night when it became apparent on the returns not to be doubted that Tilden had 184 electoral votes and Hayes 165, with twenty votes doubtful. One hundred and eighty-five were necessary for a choice. The twenty doubtful votes were distributed in Oregon, Louisiana, Florida and South Carolina.

By sunup of the next morning both Republicans and Democrats started after these twenty votes. If the Republicans got them all it meant that Hayes would be elected by a margin of one electoral vote.

Theft of Election Charged.

It was freely charged that Tilden had been fraudulently deprived of several electoral votes and the election. His popular vote exceeded that of Hayes by 250,000. As in the election just passed, the doubtful states were California and some of the middle western states, notably Nebraska. Florida remained a puzzle for a long time. In those days the south was not solid when it came to voting because of the punitive measures enforced by the north after the civil war, which restricted suffrage in the rebel states.

For a day or so after the presidential election in 1882 there was considerable doubt as to the result. Many Republican papers claimed that Benjamin Harrison, Republican, had been re-elected over Grover Cleveland, Democrat, by a comfortable margin. Indiana and Illinois were claimed by both sides, and it looked for awhile, judging by the scattering returns, that Harrison would carry both Delaware and West Virginia.

The second day, however, proved Mr. Cleveland's election for a second term with a handsome majority in the electoral college, his vote being 277 against 145 for Harrison.

But the race was so close for awhile that the newspapers of New York suggested that the next president of the United States might have to be elected by congress.

Will demonstrate any evening at 123 Buford St. Gettysburg.

NEW LAWS TO STOP R. R. STRIKE

Adamson Says Congress Will Take Drastic Action.

CALLS WALK-OUT CRIMINAL

Author of Eight-Hour Act Declares Congress Will Not Again Permit Threat of Paralysis of Business.

Washington, Nov. 18.—Representative Adamson, author of the eight-hour law and vice chairman of the congressional committee about to investigate the subject of transportation, predicted at a special session of the chamber of commerce of the United States, that congress would not wait for the committee's report to enact legislation to make impossible such national paralysis as was threatened a few months ago.

Mr. Adamson told the chamber the law was within the enacting power of congress. He denied the contention that it is an act to regulate wages, and not to fix hours of employment. Speaking for himself, he did not believe in government ownership of railroads, nor in any attempt to consolidate the regulating power into federal hands to the exclusion of state commissions. He said the railroads should not be charged with disloyalty because they committed acts of congress, and should have their day in court.

"If the people of the country," he said, "can't pass laws that will pass muster in the supreme court, you can't blame the railroads for fighting. But both parties in this controversy seem to forget the master. They forget they are public servants, and can't make a fight that will stop the interstate commerce of the country, and congress reminded them of that when the people determined to prevent interruption of public business."

Both sides in the recent controversy, he said, employed "barbarous methods."

"Strikes," he said, "are an outrage. I don't have any idea congress will wait for a report of the joint committee to take preliminary steps to remedy this situation."

Mr. Adamson criticized the railroads for not "playing a little politics" to make the people regard them with affection. Capitalists who control them, he said, forget many were built on funds from the people, and that "the people never asked the capitalists to buy all the railroads and speculate on them."

Charles R. Van Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin, attacked the law.

"Why, may the same men not come back in two years, when another congress is to be elected, or in four, when a president is to be elected, and say: 'Gentlemen, if you do not pass a law providing time and a half for overtime, we shall strike?'" he asked. "It is inevitable. If there is no remedial legislation, this situation will arise again."

Mr. Wilson May Intervene.

Washington, Nov. 18.—Heads of the great railway systems and representatives of the brotherhoods may be called together by President Wilson for another conference on the Adamson eight-hour law.

It was said in official circles that the suggestion has been seriously considered by the president, and that the developments of the next few days may determine whether the conference will be called.

Another conference, it is believed, would tend to bring the opposing factions nearer to a peaceable settlement and afford a basis for final agreement.

HUNTER KILLED

Was Accidentally Shot by Comrade in Automobile.

Williamsport, Pa., Nov. 18.—Frank Wise, forty-five years old, died in the Williamsport hospital as the result of the first fatal hunting accident here this year.

With Leroy Winner, he had been hunting north of the city. They had placed their guns in the automobile they had used and were about to go home when Wise asked for his gun. As Winner reached for it the piece was discharged, the load going through the front of the machine and into Wise's groin. He was rushed to the hospital, but died a few minutes after being admitted.

Explorers Off for Amazon.

New York, Nov. 18.—Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice and Mrs. Rice, left New York with a party of scientists on the steam yacht Alberta to explore the little known regions of the upper Amazon. The trip will last at least six months. Mrs. Rice before her marriage to the explorer, was the widow of George D. Widener, of Philadelphia, who was lost on the Titanic.

Found Dead on Mud Flats.

Chester, Pa., Nov. 18.—The body of an unidentified well-dressed man was found on the Delaware river flats, near the Sun Oil works, Marcus Hook. Footprints in the mud indicated that the man had wandered out on the flats, slipped and fallen face downward and suffocated with the mud in his mouth and nostrils.

CLASH OVER AUTO RULES

Commercial Trucks Coming Into Pa. From Del. Must Register.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 18.—Reciprocal automobile relations between the commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the state of Delaware have been disturbed, as far as commercial vehicles are concerned, and no such machines from Delaware will be permitted in this state without Pennsylvania registration and the same must be had by Pennsylvania trucks going into Delaware.

The situation, the first to rattle the reciprocal relations between the states in regard to automobiles, came about because the state of Delaware passed an amendment to its automobile laws that all Pennsylvania commercial cars must register in that state as soon as they cross the line.

Individuals' Trucks Exempt.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 18.—The reciprocal feature of the Delaware law is that commercial vehicles owned by individuals are not subject to dual state registration, only machines owned by firms, corporations or partnerships are so required.

WOULD BLOCK BET PAYMENTS

Republican Organization Leaders Contemplating Resort to Old Law.

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 18.—It was rumored in this city that the Republican organization leaders, having backed Hughes to win with thousands of dollars, have a plan on foot to keep the winning Democrats from cashing their bets.

A law on the statute books, passed in 1817 and amended in 1839, provides the county poor directors shall proceed against all stakeholders of election bets, and, having recovered the money, shall use it for the maintenance of the poor. The organization has control of the poorhouse.

Most of the local bets were not to have been paid until the announcement of the official returns, but the rumor spread quickly to the gamblers and a large lot of money was turned over.

Accused of Embezzlement.

West Chester, Nov. 18.—Jonathan C. Hare, member of a leading family and for a number of years prominent as a real estate and insurance broker, was arrested on a charge of embezzlement. Patrick Corcoran, a friend, furnished bonds. Hare failed in business a few weeks ago.

Good Things For Thanksgiving Dinner

Roast Turkey.

To truss the fowl draw the thighs and wings close against the body and fasten securely with skewers or tie with string. Rub the entire surface with salt, wash with soft butter and dredge with flour. Place in a hot oven and when well browned reduce the heat. Baste with the fat in pan and two cupsful of boiling water, continue basting every twenty minutes until meat is done, which will require about three hours for an eight or ten pound turkey. If roasted in a covered roaster it is not necessary to baste very often, as the steam keeps the roast moist, but it should have the fat and the broth dipped over it now and then. Turn the turkey occasionally, so that it may brown evenly.

Turkey Stuffing.

Four cupfuls of stale bread crumbs, a quarter cupful of melted butter, salt and pepper. Add sage or fine herbs if liked. Moisten very slightly with warm water or stock. This amount is for an eight pound turkey. Do not crowd either crop or body or the stuffing will be heavy. The giblets, stewed and chopped fine, may be added to the gravy or they may be previously prepared and added to the stuffing.

FOILING THE FLAMES.

Methods of Fire Prevention Should Be Studied in Every Home.

In bygone days the function of the chief of a fire department was merely to put out fires. Nowadays his duty is to prevent them.

Originally a fireman's work was defensive. Now it is also offensive. It attacks the cause.

Most fires are preventable. Individual carelessness is the chief cause. Education of the public—even involving punitive measures—is the remedy.

The simplest method of getting rid of fires is first to get rid of things that burn. "Cleanup days" are no novelty.

They have undoubtedly reduced the fire loss ratio, but the very fact that there is need of an annual cleanup is proof that the public has not yet been sufficiently educated. Once a year is not often enough to wash the public's face or to brush its teeth and clean out its ears.

This should be a daily task. Waste, rubbish and combustibles should not be allowed to accumulate.

The public education must go further. It should be carried into the home and should begin with the child.

A periodical lecture or talk given at least once a month in the public schools by a fireman in uniform would strike at the very root of the fire problem. An official in uniform always impresses a child, and his remarks and directions would carry the weight of authority. These lectures if illustrated by charts and diagrams would be more effective and would graphically present to the child mind not only the dangers of fire, but the methods of prevention and quick extinguishment.

In some cities juvenile police departments have been established with varied success, but a juvenile fire department, whether organized or merely existing in the educational equipment of children to prevent and extinguish fires, would be one of the most advanced steps taken toward the conservation of human life and property.

Coat Costume of Blue Duvelyn

Long, single-breasted coat of blue duvelyn worn with a plain full skirt to make a fetching tailored costume. A three-piece belt holds in the plaits at the sides.

Fold of 54 inch material without nap. So far the new coat costumes have not shown any radical changes, yet the models achieved are sufficiently distinctive to make those of last season.

Pictorial Review Coat No. 6883.

son blue estate. Blue duvelyn is used for this attractive model, featuring the long single-breasted coat with convertible collar. The fullness of the coat is laid in plaits under a fancy three-piece belt. There are inserted pockets which may be omitted, if desired. In medium size the costume requires 5 1/2 yards of 54 inch duvelyn. The coat alone calls for 3 1/2 yards, with 2 yards lining 27 inches wide for the pockets.

The home dressmaker must carefully study the cutting guide first, then thoroughly familiarize herself with each section of the pattern to avoid errors and waste of material. After the duvelyn has been folded in half, place the front of the pattern on the goods first. The straight edge of the tissue should rest evenly on the selvedge of the material and on a lengthwise thread. The back comes next, laid on a lengthwise thread. There will be room enough between the front and back of the coat to cut the piecing for the side gore of the front. Above the back and to the right of the front, the belt section is laid.

The sleeve comes next, with the cuff and pocket to the right of it, laid on a lengthwise thread. Then, on the fold, is placed the collar, with the pointed belt section to the right of it, on a lengthwise thread. The underfacing has the straight edge running along the selvedge edge of duvelyn and is also laid on a lengthwise thread of material.

Later in the season the sleeves and collar may be edged with otter, mole-skin or kolinsky. Use buttons to trim the belt and cuffs. This coat promises to enjoy unusually smart favor.

Russian coats, or at least coats showing strong Russian influence, come from the various Parisian ateliers and there are certain ample models suggesting the dolman lines beloved of Eugenie and her court.

Sizes, 14 to 20 years. Price, 15 cents.

Thicken gravy and serve. Use the other parts as soup.

Veal Tongue a la Tartare.—Have ready six veal tongues which have been boiled till tender, the skins removed and discarded. Roll neatly and press between two plates until cold. Dip each in egg and bread crumbs brown well on each side in hot butter. Dish them upon cold tartar sauce, garnish with pickles and serve. FUNCTIONS OF THE ELECTORS

States Were to Have Voice in Choosing President.

HAS SOME DISADVANTAGES.

System in Some Instances Gives Small States Greater Proportionate Representation in Electoral College Than Larger States Have—Founders Sought Only Men of High Standing.

The electoral college, the reason for its existence and its functions have been the subject of considerable discussion during the election just held. A great many questions have been asked concerning this institution, and these are answered by the New York Sun as follows:

The idea of the founders of the republic was to have picked men, regardless of political party, choose the president. Accordingly they provided in the constitution that each state should appoint presidential electors "in such manner as its legislature may direct."

It was the design of the framers of our constitution to give the states, as such, a voice in the choice of the president. Accordingly they provided in article II, section 2, that—

"Each state shall appoint . . . a number of electors equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the state may be entitled in the congress."

This gave to the smaller states a representation among the electors greater than would have been theirs had population alone been consulted. It is followed today by allotting to each state as many electors as it has senators and representatives combined. Thus New York has two senators and forty-three representatives, and therefore forty-five presidential electors. Rhode Island has two senators, three congressmen and five presidential electors. Yet the population of New York is not nine, but eighteen times that of Rhode Island. The two additional electors are the state's voice in the choice of a president, as distinguished from the voice of the people, though the utterance may be the same.

The First Election.

In the first election of a president in 1789 there were attempts to hold popular elections in New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, but the choice of electors was finally made by the legislatures of these states. Rhode Island and North Carolina had not yet ratified the constitution. In New York the legislature quarreled too long about the question of ratification, so that these three states failed that year to choose presidential electors.

Every one had Washington in mind for the presidency, but he was not nominated in the modern sense at all. When the electors assembled each elector cast two votes, not distinguishing one as for president and the other as for vice president. There were sixty-nine electors, and each cast one vote for Washington. Of the other sixty-four votes John Adams had thirty-four, John Jay had nine and the rest were scattered. Washington was accordingly declared president and John Adams vice president.

In 1792 there were for the first time two distinctly declared and opposing candidates for the presidency—Adams and Jefferson. Adams received 71 votes and Jefferson 68. Thus Jefferson became vice president. Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina cast divided electoral votes. Even in Jefferson's home state there was an electoral vote for Adams, although Virginia was strongly Jeffersonian. The fine theory of the fathers that the electors could and should act independently of popular preference did not survive this political strain.

Electors Are Tied.

In 1800 a fresh difficulty arose. Jefferson and Burr each received seventy-three votes of the electors and were tied for the presidency. Now Burr had not been seriously thought of for the presidency. The votes cast for him had been intended to insure him second place. The contest had been regarded solely as between Jefferson and Adams. But Burr had permitted the use of his name as a candidate against Jefferson.

This muddle, ultimately resolved in favor of Jefferson by the house of representatives, ended the business of having the electors vote only for president, with the vice presidency falling to the man whose vote stood second. Thereafter votes were cast distinctly for president and for vice president, as is done today.

The electors of the present will be seen to be entirely different persons from those the founders of this country had in mind. The electors are now as completely responsive to the popular will as is possible without the entire removal of state boundaries in presidential elections. Were these boundaries to be disregarded there would be no further use for presidential electors, and the popular vote would decide the issue.

And that is what the nation will have when by the process of constitutional amendment the element of statehood is eliminated and the people vote directly for president. Then the president will always represent a majority of the electorate.

A Strange Revelation

By ELINOR MARSH

When John Dowling retired from the police, at a dinner given him he told the following story:

"Most of you will remember the Charley murder case. After a month had passed and we had given out every day or so that we were on the track of the murderer and would get him sure the public began to lose confidence and the papers were full of scathing remarks about the police. An election for city officers was coming on, and the chief told me one day to drop everything else and work on the Charley case, intimating that the administration's control depended on my discovering the murderer."

"I did a hard lot of thinking on the problem. Indeed, I began to fear that if I kept on I would run into nervous prostration. I walked the floor nights trying to put this and that together to construct a theory of the murder. So my wife put me in a room by myself where I could brood without bothering her or the children."

"One night after the usual brain racket I fell into a slumber. I don't know how long I slept, but I think it was about an hour. Then I woke up, and started at seeing a man standing by my bed."

"Come with me," he said, and I put you on to an explanation of the Charley murder."

"I jumped out of bed, fastened on my clothes, strapped on my revolver, and despite my anxiety to get the information he promised I did not forget that he had come into my house without being admitted, and I was somewhat suspicious of him—and followed him downstairs. A horse and buggy were standing at the door. We climbed into the vehicle, the fellow whipped up the horse, and off we went."

"I was so impatient and curious to know what was coming that I tried to pump it out of him, but his mouth was shut like an oyster, and never a word did he speak from the time we started till we pulled up in front of the house in which Charley's body had been found the morning after the murder. I knew it was that house, though I didn't know any one of the family of the murdered man. It had been shut up since the tragedy, but now there were lights in every part."

"My companion alighted, led me to the house and, opening the front door for me, bade me enter. What because of him after that I don't know, but I didn't see him again, unless one of the persons whom I am going to tell you was he."

"Hearing voices mingled with sobbing upstairs, I ran up and stood in an opening on the second floor looking into a bedroom through an open door. On a couch lay the figure of a man, but a number of persons were crowded about him so that I could not see his face. A young woman was on her knees beside the couch, hysterically clinging to the body, while another woman was trying to draw her away. A man was standing apart, wringing his hands. I stepped into the room and the moment he saw me he collapsed. The woman trying to draw the girl away from the body turned and, seeing me, uttered a shriek. Then she dropped on her knees before me, and between her sobs said:

"Don't take him! He made a terrible mistake. Oh, why didn't I confide in him? Let me explain, and when you know how we suffer at what has occurred I am sure you will not add to our misfortune. This is my intimate friend, pointing to the girl beside the couch. She was married clandestinely to the man who lies there. The marriage could not be published because her father would disinherit her. I permitted them to meet here. My husband was here this evening, and she was expected. My husband came home suddenly and found him here with me, waiting for her. Mad with jealousy, without giving us time to explain, he seized a heavy glass ornament and brought it down on the victim's head. Please go away from here and say nothing. We are the only ones who know of the tragedy."

"I was thinking what I could say to the woman to make it easy for her—for I felt obliged to report the matter—when the lights went out and left me in darkness."

"I was awakened in the morning by my wife in my own room from a heavy sleep or stupor. I don't know which. She could only get me up by telling me I would be late in reporting. I hurried to get into my clothes, swallowed a cup of coffee and went to headquarters."

"I thought the matter over that day and the next told the chief that I had failed to find a clue to the Charley murder and advised him to keep feeding the public with stories of clues I'll offer election and then let the matter drop. Now that I have unburdened myself I wouldn't mind hearing what you think about it."

"Who do you think was the man who took you to the house?" asked one.

"I don't like to say, but my suspicion is he was the murdered man."

"Did anything ever come out about the murder?" asked another.

"Not that I ever heard."

"The consensus of opinion was that Dowling had thought so much about the Charley case that he had dreamed it all. A few years later a man on his deathbed confessed that he had killed Charley by mistake through jealousy, which was muddled for."

Knew About Aching.

"How many rods make an acre?" "One," replied Tommy, with a lively recollection of the last time he had ached because of the rod.

TO SAVE THE ROAD RAILROAD STORY

Like the other numbers of "The Hazar" of Helen Series, the thrill of this number loses none of its force. Helen climbs to the top of an engine, jumps to the guide ropes across the track dropping to the cab of the persuing engine, and is at the throttle of the engine in a minute.

SPAGETTI VIM COMEDY

Pump and Runt assisted by the entire cast consume, juggle and bombard each other with it, and finally bury one of their number under gallons of this "Daggers Delight."

THE FABLE OF THE UNDECIDED BRUNETTE ESSANAY COMEDY

A very good comedy with the moral. "It is necessary to make a few purchases both before and after marriage."
